FORMER GOVERNOR ARTHUR H. JAMES, CONGRESSMAN CHARLES L. GERLACH AND OTHER SPEAKERS ADDRESS ENTHUSED CAPACITY AUDIENCE AT REPUBLICAN RALLY

County Committee Meets In Annual Session in Doylestown Armory

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

Pres't of County G. O. P. Women Makes Announcements

By Staff Reporter
DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 25—Discrediting all claims of the New Deal administration for the successful prosecution of the war, the Hon. Arthur H. James, former governor of Pennsylvania, told a packed house at the Armory here, Saturday afternoon, that "It was the New Deal which almost lost the War, and if today the War is being won, it is almost won, it is not because of the New Deal but in spite of it."

This statement was made when James, who is the GOP candidate for Judge of the Superior Court, addressed the annual meeting of the Bucks County Republican Committee. It was an enthusiastic political rally, with Republicans and old-line Democrats from every section of the county on hand to jam the seating and standing capacity of the hall.

Two things, according to the former governor of the Keystone State, have won the war for America. "One of these things is industry," the candidate declared. "And one other group deserves the great credit for winning the war. You know the ones I mean. This war is being won by the young men of America . . . it's being won by your sons . . . yours boys in uniform."

Praising the efforts of the women electorate in the country, James declared: "It is the women of America who will have the most to do."

Yom Kippur To Be Observed On Wednesday

The Jewish Day of Repentance, Yom Kippur, will be observed as a day of prayer and fasting on Wednesday. As is customary in the Synagogue, the eve of the holiday will be marked by a religious service which derives its name, Kol Nidre, from the opening prayer for the occasion.

Jewish thought adheres to the doctrine of sin, which Judaism considers a potent agency for religious and moral regeneration, despite the generally accepted philosophy of Herbert Spencer that mankind is automatically becoming better and better. It holds that the improvement dealt with the means whereby men live rather than the ends for which men live. The moral advance of mankind is still pictured in the Biblical ideal of the kingdom of God as contrasted to the kingdom of science.

The prayers of "The Day" emphasize the fact that men and nations may be heir to all the technologies and still violate every dictate of the law of God.

One of the great teachings of Yom Kippur, which is of especial interest in these days of stress on democratic ideals, is symbolized in the reading of the Book of Jonah with its perennial emphasis upon the equality of all men before God.

FORMER GOVERNOR ARTHUR H. JAMES' ADDRESS

(By Staff Reporter)
DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 25—Former Governor of Pennsylvania, Arthur H. James, spoke as follows at the annual meeting of the Bucks County Republican Committee held here Saturday afternoon: "Dirt Under the New Deal Rug."

Six years ago I asked the women of Pennsylvania to support my candidacy for Governor. At that time I said: "I want the hand that rocks the cradle to help me rock the political corruptionists out of the crib at Harrisburg."

The women of this state answered my appeal. They, too, wanted a new broom. They wanted the principles of good housekeeping applied to the state government. They wanted to change to common sense and common honesty.

They knew the truth of the old Biblical adage: "As ye sow, so shall ye reap." They knew the wisdom of Benjamin Franklin when he said: "He who goes a borrowing goes a sorrowing."

Pennsylvania made the change six years ago that the Republican party now is asking the nation to make. We cut away from the New Deal experiments and extravagances and waste. The Little New Deal went out the window.

Today I ask you, who in Pennsylvania regrets that we made the change? Who in the Keystone State is not better off, not happier, today because of that change? What single one of the dire forecasts which the Democrats then made actually came to pass?

As a matter of fact, I know of no possible better demonstration of the soundness of the political and administrative principles of the National Republican Party than the success of those principles when applied to Pennsylvania.

Make just one comparison. Take the six years of Keystone State history from 1932 to 1938 and compare them with the six years since then. The New Deal theories, which the American people today are being asked to piece out with another Four-Year patch, were tried out on us during that first six year period.

We had an overdose of politics in every branch of the state government. We had laws, 3000 pages of laws at a single session. We had taxes, the heaviest and most burdensome taxes in our history. We had vast building programs started, not so much because of serious needs for them but because favored contractors could make a profit.

And we had a deficit—a deficit that rose and soared like a little duplicate of the national debt. We had relief—lots of relief because we had lots of unemployment. At the end of those six years, had the New Deal cured the Depression in Pennsylvania? Had the Democrats carried out the first plank of their 1934 platform—a job for every man who wants to work?

You know the answer! In 1938 unemployment had risen to its highest peak. That year found unemployment towering over the million mark in this state of ten million inhabitants. For a time one in every seven persons in Pennsylvania was being supported by public assistance checks.

Yet we in Pennsylvania were told then what America is being told today: "Don't change horses in the middle of the stream!"

We were told that only the New Dealers knew how to give relief to the unemployed, that the Republicans weren't to be trusted, that the New Dealers had the experience. Of course they'd had experience—long years of failure. They'd had six years of failure to cure the Depression then, just as now they've had twelve years experience of failure with the very ideas they wish to apply to post-war reconstruction. The War did what the New Deal couldn't—it gave us a vacation from Depression. But when peace comes, if the New Deal is still in power, we will be right back where we were—just as worse off then ever.

The Pennsylvania New Dealers told us in 1938 that the Republicans were incompetent and untrained, that we couldn't do what we promised. They said the budget couldn't be balanced, that taxes couldn't be reduced.

Even after I was elected, and the housecleaning was well on the way, the New Dealers kept up the same old words and music—the same tune they are singing today.

When I had been in office two years, the Philadelphia Record in an editorial scoffing at our financial plans, promised me a page-one apology if I didn't have to call for a tax increase. I'm still waiting for the apology. But I learned long ago not to take too seriously the campaign propaganda of that Newspaper. That is the same New Deal mouthpiece which today is trying so hard to tell you that Thomas E. Dewey, successful Governor of the nation's most populous state, is just a boy in short pants!

Pennsylvania made the break in 1938. You women before me, and the rest of the women of this state, helped make the change.

I ask you, do you regret it? For six years you have had thrifty, commonsense government, government on a pay-as-you-go basis. You've had steadily rising employment, encouragement to industry, more employment than ever in the state's history and an end to scandals in state government.

We had relief and unemployment compensation—always will there be need for such types of public assistance. But we've had infinitely less of it, because we actually did what the New Dealers have been promising to do—we got at the root of the trouble and found self-supporting jobs.

We helped put industry back on its feet. We cut off the government aid which was clogging the wheels of industry, and got those wheels turning again. We helped find the jobs which put our people back on their feet.

And the New Dealers can't say that Pennsylvania was true of the Depression elsewhere. It didn't.

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS

(By International News Service)

5TH ARMY SMASHES THROUGH STUBBORN GERMAN DEFENSES

Rome—Fifth Army battlers of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark smashed savagely through stubborn German defenses today to widen their gap in the center of the Gothic line and seize positions marking the farthest Allied advance to the north in Italy.

Beating back fierce resistance, the Fifth Army units fought over mountain roads and trails, over sheer rocks and ledges to gain advance footholds below Castel Del Rio and Roco.

Brazilian troops of the Fifth Army participated in the action, making some gains against the enemy.

In the center of the Gothic line, Lt. Gen. Clark's battlers slashed ahead in the vital Futa Pass region, and farther to the east British and Indian units of the Fifth Army scored important gains.

On the Adriatic flank of the line, where Eighth Army fighters stormed past captured Rimini to slice up the Po Valley in a drive to cut off German units at the Gothic line, heavy fighting developed as Nazi Marshal Kesselring's men fought desperately to stave off complete disaster.

Sister Arranges Party Honoring Robert Riedel

Mrs. George Nelson, Bath street, gave a birthday party Thursday evening at her home in honor of her brother, Robert Riedel, East Circle, who was celebrating his 16th anniversary. The affair was a surprise to Robert, and guests were assembled at the Nelson home when he arrived.

Games were played and refreshments served. Robert received gifts. Those present: "Betty" Jane Stockett, "Betty" and Blanche Gillies, Shirley Gillies, Harold Den-Bleyker, Carlin Stockett, Robert and Richard Riedel, Bristol; Ellen Jane Booz and Allen Brace, Edgely.

MAKE BIG EFFORT TO AID AIRBORNE TROOPS

British Second Army Endeavors to Make Stronger Contact

PATROLS AID AIRMEN

By International News Service
British Second Army forces battled furiously today to establish stronger contact with airborne units north of the Lek river in the Arnhem area of Holland.

Patrols crossing the stream in darkness earlier established connections with the trapped sky-men. An official communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said no relief in strength thus far had been provided for the beleaguered paratroopers, but that the situation looked much brighter, indicating that closer contact will be effected shortly.

A new penetration of the German border was reported east of Nijmegen, where British tanks penetrated the Reich for a mile to capture the town of Beek. This placed the tanks some seven miles north of Cleve, northern terminus of the westwall at a point only six miles from the region where the Rhine crosses the German frontier.

British troops at the head of the long corridor from Eindhoven north to Nijmegen and from Nijmegen toward Arnhem forged ahead through Nazi defenses, and other Allied forces repelled furious enemy counter-attacks along the corridor walls.

The Germans appeared to be withdrawing toward Antwerp and turned from the base of the corridor. British patrols advanced 10 miles without contacting the Nazis.

Ludwig-Wheeler Wedding Solemnized at Croydon

HULMEVILLE, Sept. 25—A young Hulmeville woman was wed on Saturday at a double ring ceremony performed in the rectory of St. Thomas Aquinas R. C. Church, Croydon. The contracting parties are Miss Ethel M. Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Wheeler, Main street, and Mr. Ernest Ludwig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ludwig, Newportville.

The one o'clock nuptial ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Joseph B. Diamond, Mr. Wheeler gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride and groom had one attendant each, Miss Adelaide Ludwig, Newportville, a sister of the groom; and Mr. Walter Barner, of Croydon.

Following a reception at the Ludwig home, attended by more than 100 guests, Mr. Ludwig and bride left for a four days' stay in New York City. They will reside in an apartment at the Ludwig home.

The costume selection of the bride for her wedding day was a gown of white satin and mouseline de soie. The floor-length model was fashioned with bodice and bracelet length sleeves of satin, and skirt, and high-necked yoke of the mouseline. The yoke was finished with a ruffle of mouseline. A tatra of orange blossoms held a fingertip veil of net, edged with scalloped lace. Slippers were of white satin, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and orange blossoms.

Miss Ludwig's floor-length taffeta gown was of watermelon hue. A ruffle of self-material edged the yoke and appeared at the hip line. The bodice was shirred and sleeves were of bracelet length. Miss Ludwig chose gold toned slippers and a pink floral headpiece from which fell a pink shoulder length veil. Her arm bouquet was made up of pink roses.

The bride's gift to her attendant was a compact of tortoise shell and gold; and to Mr. Barner a tie clasp and collar pin set was presented by Mr. Ludwig.

As a travelling costume the bride selected a two-piece dress, with skirt of purple plaid, and bodice of black velvet trimmed with the plaid material. Her hat and accessories were of black, and she wore an orchid corsage.

Mrs. M. Heaton, 423 Washington street, spent Friday until Sunday with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Berry, Fort Washington, Pa.

WHY ROOSEVELT SHOULD VOTE FOR DEWEY

PART TWO: TRADEMARKS AND BRANDS

President Roosevelt can strike a blow this Fall for the principles he says he believes in. All he needs to do is to vote for Dewey. . . .

(Doylestown Intelligencer, September 25th)

Are there any fundamental political principles which would stand in the way of President Roosevelt voting for a Republican candidate for president?

The answer is no. Most of the Republican principles already have been endorsed, and eloquently, by Mr. Roosevelt.

If there are any which the President has missed, these are more than made up by the many New Deal policies which are riding rough-shod over Mr. Roosevelt's expressions of opinion.

Perhaps the protective tariff is the plank most closely linked with the traditions and history of the Republican Party. For generations tariff protection has been a Republican trademark. Since the days of Cleveland, few Democrats have ever publicly disavowed their faith in "free trade" theories—or to call these by their more modern name, "tariff for revenue only."

Yet the following pledge came, not from a Republican, but from President Roosevelt, speaking at Wheeling on October 19, 1932:

" . . . I will never advocate a tariff policy which will withdraw protection from American workers against those countries which employ cheap labor or who operate under a standard of living which is lower than that of our own great laboring classes."

There is nothing un-Republican in these words. If they correctly express what he really believes in, he would be more at home in the Republican Party than he is in the ranks of the New Deal which has used the Trade Agreements to slash in half the tariff protections in a long list of commodities in which America will be competing with foreign nations after the war.

Take the issue of States' Rights. For several years the Republican Party has been advancing this principle as being a constitutional check against complete Federal centralization. The New Dealers, on the other hand, have used the allocation of public moneys as a lever to undermine States' Rights.

So far as his words bind him, Mr. Roosevelt is strongly in favor of the Republican side of this argument. In 1929, for example, he said in an address before the Conference of Governors at New London, Conn.:

"Our Nation has been a successful experiment in democratic government, because the individual States have waived in only a few instances their sovereign rights. . . ."

And in a radio address two years later he amplified this thought:

"The preservation of this 'Home Rule' by the States is not a cry of jealous Commonwealths seeking their own

2 KNOWN HERE AID IN CRIPPLING GERMANY

1st Lt. S. G. Navetta and Sgt. P. Mannherz Help in Bombing Program

A STRATEGIC TASK

More than 100 officers and men from Pennsylvania are members of a B-24 Liberator group located at an 8th Air Force Liberator Station in England, and commanded by Col. Luther J. Fairbanks, of Burlington, Iowa, which has participated in the gigantic Eighth Air Force strategic bombing program to cripple the German Air Force, to cut German oil supplies and to slow German war production.

In the group are two from this area: Sgt. Philip Mannherz, engineer; and 1st Lt. Samuel G. Navetta, Wilson avenue, armament officer.

During the first six months of 1944, Eighth Air Force heavy bombers made 82 large scale assaults on German aircraft and parts factories and 200 attacks on Luftwaffe airfields. During this campaign Reich plane production fell below the 1942 level, despite the known intent of the German High Command to quadruple that figure by 1944. In addition to destruction of aircraft factories and airfield installations, Eighth Air Force Liberator and Fortress gunners shot down 1969 German planes in combat and escorting fighters shot down 1977; and close to 2000 were destroyed or damaged on the ground by bombs and strafing.

Furthermore the giant bombers on 44 occasions blasted synthetic oil plants, oil refineries and oil storage depots, putting out of action for periods of several months major sources of Luftwaffe high-test aviation fuel.

The Liberators and Fortresses of the Eighth also made more than 80 attacks on other major war industries in Europe during the six-month period.

Primarily because of this vast and wide strategic bombing, when Allied troops landed on the North

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Warns Insurance Buyers

Pittsburgh—State Insurance Commissioner Gregg L. Neel told Pittsburgh underwriters today that "wide open price competition" would result if the U. S. Department of Justice rested on a supreme court decision and outlawed the principles that have guided insurance companies for three-quarters of a century.

He pointed out to the Association of Insurance Buyers of Pittsburgh that Attorney General Francis Biddle had secured criminal indictments against the Southern Underwriters Bureau on charges of breaking anti-trust laws.

"You should give serious thought and decide whether you agree that solvency which protects the insurer in the interest of the insured is more desirable than wide-open price competition which would result if insistence upon the no-price fixing doctrine of our anti-trust laws should be carried to its logical conclusion," Neel told the Association.

BOULOGNE STRONGHOLDS SUCCUMB TO ALLIED SUPERIORITY

London—German strongholds in Boulogne have succumbed to Allied superiority after last-ditch resistance, the official German communique admitted today, explaining that the defenders ran out of ammunition.

Allied bridgeheads on both sides of Epipel have been broken, the statement claimed, while northwest of Antwerp a Canadian penetration across the Antwerp Canal has been ironed out.

Repulse of several Allied attacks was claimed by Nazi rearguards still operating in the bridgehead south of the western Scheldt. Allied success on the Adriatic front in Italy was conceded.

RETURNING VETERAN

Glimpses of war's end afforded
by the amazing United Nations
victories in Europe and Japan's faltering under American pounding have excited much speculation about what kind of man the returning veteran will be.

Following the Civil War, the
veterans of the northern armies
formed a solid political group
which had things its way for thirty years. But it was as members of a political party, rather than as veterans, that they asserted their power.

The veterans who returned
from the first World War had no common party allegiance. But they did assert their power when their interest was involved, and
they still assert it.

A considered discussion of the returning veteran, published in Foreign Service, organ of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, includes the assertion that "despite the ominous warnings of those who pompously predict great
changes in the American scene,
because of our tremendous veteran population, it is ridiculous
to assume that the natural human qualities of those in uniform will
be destroyed by their military experience."

The conclusion reached in the article is that "after demobiliza-tion these men and women will respond to the same human instincts which controlled their pre-
war emotions," and that "when
the war is over, those who have served in the armed forces will unite solidly in support of only one common objective—the precious privilege of being their individual selves."

Coming from an organization
composed of veterans who have served in the country's foreign wars, this view is especially significant. It reflects an experience which is likely to be repeated after
this war.

INFLATION OF FRUIT POINTS

Even when the Office of Price Administration, as the OPA is termed officially, relaxes the rationing rules, its dispensations
rarely are unmix blessings.

For instance, virtually all canned vegetables and soups have
been dropped from the rationing
list, at least temporarily. At the same time, processed fruits, canned tomatoes and tomato juice
have been doubled in point
values, in some cases quadrupled.

Suspension of most canned
vegetables from the rationing list
has been made possible by reports
of plentiful supplies. Besides fresh vegetables are so plentiful
that the demand for processed
foods has fallen off.

The new values for fruit juices
have been set at multiples of ten.
Consequently, the dealer will give
no more blue tokens in change.
Not only that, but blue tokens
now in the hands of customers
will not be acceptable except in groups of ten. The suggestion is made that neighbors pool their tokens to get full value from them. Solution of the problem of
who will get the can of tomatoes,
presumably, will be left to individual enterprise.

which will allow of a descent of about 1½ feet per mile to the Cam-

New Hope Junior Club Conducts Flower Show As Part of Meeting

Featuring the first meeting of the season of the New Hope Junior Women's Club at the headquarters of Midway Fire Company, Lahaska, was a flower show of a non-competitive nature. There were 36 entries, some of which were in unusual containers.

During the evening, Miss Margaret R. Slack, Washington Crossing, gave a talk on flower judging, and used the flowers which were on exhibit to emphasize her points. Miss Slack also complimented the members upon the fine exhibit.

Twenty-two members attended the meeting, which was in charge of the new president, Mrs. Watson D. Lake, who opened the meeting by reading a poem, "Cooperation." Group singing was directed by Mrs. John Paxson, Jr., chairman of the music committee.

Mrs. Lake announced the South-eastern District conference will be held in Philadelphia on September 29th, and that the Fall get-together of junior women's clubs in the county will be held in Newtown on September 28th with the junior club in Newtown as the host. Delegates appointed to attend the get-together include Mrs. Raymond Carter, Mrs. George Large, Mrs. Mary Myers, Mrs. Watson D. Lake, Mrs. H. Clay Large and Mrs. Edward Crockett.

O Thou King eternal, immortal, invisible, Thou only wise God our Saviour; hasten, we beseech Thee, the coming of Thy blessed reign. Overcome all the enemies of Christ, and bring low every power that is exalted against Him. Cast out all the evil things which cause wars and fightings among us, and let Thy Spirit rule the hearts of men in righteousness and love. We pray in Jesus' holy Name. Amen.

EDGELY A. C. WINS BRISTOL YOUTH LEAGUE TITLE

Scores 10 to 8 Victory Over

Charged With Loss of
The Game

EDGELY, Sept. 25—Edgely A. C. won the championship of the Bristol Youth League yesterday afternoon by scoring a 10-8 victory over St. Francis Vocational School on the Edgely diamond.

To capture the contest, the Edgely team had to fight an uphill battle as the Eddington boys amassed a 7-1 lead in the first three innings. But six runs in the fifth knocked the score for the Ashbymen. The feature of this rally was a three-bagger by Henry VanLenten with the bags loaded.

Mario Cupo, who relieved "Chuck" Silas in the fifth, was charged with the loss while the winning moundman was Benny Bintliffe who replaced Wayne Schneider in the third. During Bintliffe's tenure on the hill, St. Francis made but four hits and one run. From the fourth to the eighth only 12 batters faced Bintliffe.

Singles by Hibbs, D. Rittler, and P. Elker plus an error by Deluk gave the Edgelyites their winning pair of runs in the eighth. It was Bintliffe's fourth hit of the contest.

Former Governor Arthur H. James' Address

take a war to find the cure in this state. We'd climbed half the hill before the belated war emergency program was decided on in Washington, and we were at the top of the hill by the time war itself started.

The nation faces the same choice this year that we faced in 1938. We can put the issue in simple words: "Are we going to let the cook that spoiled the broth try to fry the chicken?"

The New Deal had many years in which to try to cure one Depression. They are telling us very plainly that they expect another Depression as soon as the war ends—a new version of the old one, with more unemployment than ever, and less national resources with which to meet it.

They spoiled the broth in their first attempt. Now I say, and I believe all the women of this nation will agree with me—it's time to try a new cook!

Don't let this "commander-in-chief" business fool you. It's not the New Deal that's winning the war. It was the New Deal which almost lost it.

The New Deal's doctrine of security, the plowing under of corn, the slaughter of pigs, the industrial policies which shut down mills and mines and factories throughout the length and breadth of America, put this nation in the worst possible position for meeting the all-out demands of total war.

We've heard a lot about great wisdom and knowledge and detailed information about what goes on in all the foreign corners of the world. We've heard about secrets delivered to the White House through the years so important that just the ordinary people of this nation, the little men and women whose only interest is that this is supposed to be THEIR nation—they couldn't be let in on these secrets any more than they can be told today what's happening at the peace conferences.

Oh, no! The wisdom and the knowledge of America's present and future—that is a banquet for the White House table; and all we are supposed to do is to hang around and pick up the crumbs! And we are supposed to vote wisely on these national policies and problems without being told what they are!

But the New Deal brain trusters know—they tell us they know. According to their story, they knew practically everything, right from the start.

Now, let me ask you a cold, hard question.

Who was the commander-in-chief when America almost lost the war in a single sneak raid?

Who was in charge of Pearl Harbor? Who left the door unlocked?

Not until the generals of the Army and the Admirals of the Navy assumed charge of the war efforts did we make progress—since then we have been going places.

I repeat: It was the New Deal which almost lost the War, and if today the War is being won, is almost won, it is not because of the New Deal but in spite of it.

Two things have won the war for America—and the New Deal didn't have a blessed thing to do with either.

One of them was industry—private enterprise industry, the same old capitalist system which the New Dealers have been kicking around for so many years.

Because war made it necessary for the New Deal to climb down off the back of industry, to give industry what used to be called "a breathing spell"—because the New Deal was desperately frightened when it realized that its policies had brought America to the threshold of disaster and defeat—for those reasons the mines and mills of America were able to turn out the greatest job of war manufacture in history.

Our factories, freed from New Deal red tape, were able to do their full share as one of the team which is winning the war, American labor may well be proud of that record.

And if here and there, warplant strikes have given labor a blackeye, let me remind you that those strikes occurred because New Dealers have persisted in their evil policy of mixing labor problems, politics and partisanship toward rival labor bosses.

The New Deal kept its fingers on just enough of the war effort so we can see the contrast. It is the New Deal which set out to produce rubber—and we still have a desperate tire shortage.

If the guns and airplanes we needed had been produced as the New Dealers have tried to produce rubber, the war would have been over long ago—and we'd be either a German or a Japanese province today.

Here and there are great industrial plants which the New Deal set out to build to show up private initiative. Some of them already have been abandoned because it would take many, many more years to get them into operation. Even if they had been completed, they would have required a further large scale shift in our population, with all the hardships and social upheaval that means, to get them into full operation.

If this part of the war program is finished at all, it will not be until long after the end of the war. If it is useful at all, it will only be for the next war—and I tell you most seriously that there will be a "next war" if the New Deal theories are applied to the problems of world-peace after the end of the present conflict.

One other group deserves the great credit for winning this war. You know the ones I mean.

This war is being won by the young men of America—it's being won by your sons—your boys in uniform.

It's their courage and their skill and, we regret to have to add, their blood, with which victory is being bought.

One of these days those boys of yours will be coming home again. They will deserve the best that America can offer them.

They will deserve real jobs. They will deserve real opportunity. They will deserve a chance in life—a chance to build their homes and happiness, in return for the dangers and hardships they now are undergoing.

That's the sort of bonus they want the most.

Women of Pennsylvania, there are two things which I say from the depths of my heart you will not want those boys of yours to find waiting for them when they come home again.

One is a pick and shovel on a WPA project!

The other is a government that will tell them that if they want a job, they'll have to see a man about joining a union—see a man named Sidney Hillman!

Pennsylvania gave the nation the best possible demonstration that the Republican Party knows how to lick the depression, how to find real jobs by helping industry create them. We showed that the Republican Party is in earnest, that it hasn't forgotten first principles, that it stands for good government, sound government, fair and impartial government, government by due process of law under the Constitution.

In the nation, it is the Republican party that can lift the national mortgage, that can and will give free enterprise a chance, that will stop a post-war depression before it ever gets started, that puts jobs ahead of dole.

As I have said many times before, let's go back to the old boarding-house of Abraham Lincoln.

It is the women of America who will have the most to say about whether the New Deal is to be given four more years to try to do what it has failed to do in twelve.

The women are the balance of power in this national election. I, for one, have no anxiety over the outcome.

My own observation is that in politics women often see even more clearly than men the simple and fundamental issues. They know some things almost by intuition—they know honesty of purpose, sincerity, frankness; and also they know that big-talk can hide deep-seated worry, and glibness can cover up incompetence.

Women, who handle the household funds in the homes of America, know that you can't run either a home or a nation successfully by living beyond your means.

They know that a little bit of candor, a little bit of firmness mixed with kindness, a little bit of give and take, can keep a household running smoothly even when the children would like to pull each other's hair.

The women of America know also that there may be times when Papa gets too tough, when he swells with his own importance, when the old man of the family gets too big for his breeches!

And that, they know, is something which can happen not only in a private household, but in a national household. And they know what to do about it!

It is the women of America who have supplied the courage and patience and steadfastness which have made possible the victories now being won by our makers of war supplies and by the sons and fathers and brothers now in the armed services.

It is the women of America who are custodians of the future fate and happiness and prosperity of this beloved nation.

In all the world, there are no safer hands to cherish that responsibility.

If the women of America trust their own instincts, if they apply to the government the same principles which make the homes successful, if they demand of their government and their public officials the same high standards and idealism and earnestness of purpose which they try to train into their own children—then the future of America is safe.

Let me close with a brief tribute to the vast women's army of America, an army far larger even than the Waves and the Waacs—the mothers of America who stay at home running their households and meeting the emergencies of the war as best they can:

"Not for the star-crowned heroes, the men that conquer and slay; But a song for those that bore them, the mothers braver than they!"

say about whether the New Deal is to be given four more years to try to do what it has failed to do in twelve.

Among the other guests and speakers sitting on the flag-decked stage, was the Hon. Charles L. Gerlach, Congressman from the Bucks-Lehigh district, a candidate for re-election to this post, who told the audience, "we need leaders with business ability for the peace that is coming, and Governor Dewey has certainly demonstrated his ability to run the State of New York on a business-like and efficient manner."

Declaring that we will have many rackets in Washington after the peace that will need cleaning up.

Gerlach declared, "We need a man like Dewey to bust these rackets. He will lead us away from the Hillmanistic, Socialistic, Communistic, foreign ideologic program of the New Dealers. He will lead us back to the good, old American way of life that has in the past made America the greatest country in the world."

Mrs. Clarence J. Buckman, GOP alternate delegate from this district to the Chicago Convention, gave a detailed report of the trip and the highlights of the meetings there. Former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, delegate to the convention, was introduced by A. Harry Clayton, chairman of the Republican Bucks County Committee. Clayton was in charge of the program of the afternoon.

Preceding the main address, the County Committee re-elected by acclamation all its officers for the next year. In addition to Chairman Clayton, they included: vice-chairman, Mrs. Clarence J. Buckman; secretary, Edward B. Watson; assistant secretary, Miss Eleanor D. Worthington.

Among other guests were the Hon. Hiram H. Keller, President Judge of Bucks County Courts, and Hon. Calvin S. Boyer, associate Judge of the Bucks County Courts. Judge Keller predicted that "Bucks County will have the largest GOP victory in its history." Judge Boyer also said all indications pointed to the success of the Republican ticket on November 7th.

Mrs. Howard Cooke, president of the Bucks County Council of Republican Women, said that "because Americanism is at stake every woman is interested in the coming election and I predict the election of Dewey and Bricker."

Wilson L. Yeakey, candidate for re-election to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth, expressed complete optimism and confidence in the outcome of the election on November 7th.

down of the three-family apartment.

Under direct examination by her attorney, Mrs. Ellicott testified that the first time that she had heard anything about a $100 offer allegedly made to her step-brother, Frank Shoudt, to burn the building, was at the Bucks County Prison where she was taken by State Police for questioning.

"It was there for the first time that Trooper Harry Christ and County Detective William L. Stackhouse told me that Shoudt had told them that I had made the offer," Mrs. Ellicott testified.

"Christ said to me that, in prison, 'do you know that I have your half-brother in the next room' and I replied, 'bring him in and I'll make him prove it,' but they didn't."

Under cross-examination by District Attorney Biester, Mrs. Ellicott explained that the Upper Black Eddy property of the defendant was transferred to her by her father about four months before he died. She also stated that her father and mother were divorced.

The defendant stated that she offered the place for sale at various times and for various amounts, but that she did not remember offering it for sale for $3000. She did remember the $4,000 figure. She said she figured the garage (which was not burned) at $1,000 and the apartment at $3,000. The defendant admitted that she increased insurance on the garage at $1,200 and that she increased the insurance

Under cross-examination by District Attorney Biester, Mrs. Ellicott explained that the Upper Black Eddy property of the defendant was transferred to her by her father about four months before he died. She also stated that her father and mother were divorced.

The defendant stated that she offered the place for sale at various times and for various amounts, but that she did not remember offering it for sale for $3000. She did remember the $4,000 figure. She said she figured the garage (which was not burned) at $1,000 and the apartment at $3,000. The defendant admitted that she increased insurance on the garage at $1,200 and that she increased the insurance on the apartment house on October 22, 1943 to $5,000.

Mrs. Ellicott, in answer to the prosecuting attorney's question, stated that it was four days after Frank Shoudt said that the defendant offered him $100 to burn the building, that she raised the insurance on the place.

The defendant stated that she did have a gallon jug in her apartment and that it was partly filled with kerosene which she had used some months before for cleaning the kitchen sink. She said that she did not remember the police asking her anything about a jug when they questioned her at the State Police barracks or the prison.

The defendant denied that she told the police that she increased the insurance on her place because it was vacant.

"The morning of the fire as you sat at the breakfast table in your New Jersey home with other occupants of the house—when the fire was discussed—did it not occur to you that it might be your place?" Mr. Biester asked the defendant. Her answer was "no."

"In spite of the fact that Mr. McIntee said at that time to you, that it might have been Elmer Shoudt's barn (220 yards from the apartment house) didn't you think it might be your place then?"

"I didn't think," Mrs. Ellicott replied.

"Didn't you call Elmer Shoudt, your cousin, on the phone, and inquire?"

"No, I was called on the phone later in the morning and informed that my apartment had burned."

Mrs. Ellicott testified that she had been at the apartment the Sunday—one week before the fire—to look over the electric connections in order to have them turned on so that the water pump would work.

Walter Hart, 43, who lives in a brick house on the Upper Black Eddy property owned by the defendant, and who pays the defendant rent, testified that he was awakened the morning of the fire and he could see flames under the steps on the first floor as he went to the garage to get his car out. He, too, remembers seeing the glass jug produced by the Commonwealth in evidence—or a jug like it—inside the apartment. He said that he used to prop open the door with a jug when he aired the place for Mrs. Ellicott. Hart, who is separated from his wife and has a housekeeper, said that Mrs. Ellicott's reputation for honesty is good.

Others who testified as to Mrs. Ellicott's reputation for honesty and for being peaceful and law-abiding included Herbert Stemm, a Commonwealth witness and cashier of the First National Bank of Milford, who said he had loaned the defendant money several times, but now; John Nice, 80-year-old retired store keeper of Upper Black Eddy and a director of the Milford bank; William T. Singley, Upper Black Eddy storekeeper, and Charles Duran, Upper Black Eddy, a retired mail clerk.

Several witnesses—some of them District Attorney Biester called defense witnesses—who testified that they had heard nothing about Frank Shoudt's the defendant's half-brother and that his reputation was good.

Mrs. Joseph Bryan was elected president of the Doylestown Township Parent-Teacher Association at the first meeting of the season in the consolidated school building at Edison. Mrs. Bryan succeeded Merton Houk.

Other officers elected at the meeting, which was attended by about 50 persons, include the following: Vice-president, Paul W. Kutz; secretary, Mrs. Robert Horn, and treasurer, Wilmer Althouse.

aggrandizement at the expense of sister States. It is a fundamental necessity if we are to remain a truly united country."

Of course, broadly speaking, the impact of the various Republican pleas this year is that, peace or war, there never is and never will be an indispensable man in a democracy—and that America has reached a stage where we need new and younger blood in the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt has no quarrel with that concept. It was "new and younger blood"—the words are his—which he proposed to infuse into the Supreme Court by his Court Packing bill.

And in 1932, speaking before the Republican-for-Roosevelt League in New York City, he said:

"To indulge in such a fantastic idea of my own individual importance would be to betray the common hope and the common cause that has brought us all together this year. A great man left a watchword that we can well repeat: 'There is no indispensable man!'"

Perhaps the President can be persuaded to form some Roosevelt-for-Republican Leagues before election comes!

By Staff Reporter
DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 25.—Discrediting all claims of the New Deal administration for the successful prosecution of the war, the Hon. Arthur H. James, former governor of Pennsylvania, told a packed house at the Armory here, Saturday afternoon, that "It was the New Deal which almost lost the war, and if today the war is being won, it is almost won, it is not because of the New Deal but in spite of it."

This statement was made when James, who is the GOP candidate for Judge of the Superior Court, addressed the annual meeting of the Bucks County Republican Committee. It was an enthusiastic political rally, with Republicans and old-line Democrats from every section of the county on hand to jam
the seating and standing capacity of the hall.

Two things, according to the former governor of the Keystone State, have won the war for America. "One of these things is industry," the candidate declared.
"And one other group deserves the great credit for winning the war.
You know the ones I mean. This war is being won by the young men of America . . . it's being won by form."

Praising the efforts of the women electorate in the country, James declared: "It is the women of America who will have the most to do."

Yom Kippur To Be Observed On Wednesday

The Jewish Day of Repentance, Yom Kippur, will be observed as a day of prayer and fasting on Wednesday. As is customary in the Synagogue, the eve of the holiday will be marked by a religious service which derives its name, Koi Nidre, from the opening prayer for the occasion.

Jewish thought adheres to the doctrine of sin, which Judaism considered a potent agency for religious and moral regeneration, despite the generally accepted philosophy of Herbert Spencer that mankind is automatically becoming better and better. It holds that the improvement noted by that great philosopher dealt with the means whereby men live rather than the ends for which men live. The moral advance of mankind is still pictured in the Biblical ideal of the kingdom of God as contrasted to the kingdom of science.

The prayers of "The Day" emphasize the fact that men and nations may be heir to all the technologies and still violate every dictate of the law of God.

One of the great teachings of Yom Kippur, which is of especial interest in these days of stress on democratic ideals, is symbolized in the reading of the Book of Jonah with its perennial emphasis upon the equality of all men before God.

RETURNING VETERAN

Glimpses of war's end afforded
by the amazing United Nations
victories in Europe and Japan's
faltering under American pound-
ing have excited much speculation about what kind of man the
returning veteran will be.

Following the Civil War, the
veterans of the northern armies
formed a solid political group
which had things its way for thirty years. But it was as members of a political party, rather than as veterans, that they asserted their power.

The veterans who returned
from the first World War had no common party allegiance. But they did assert their power when
their interest was involved, and
they still assert it.

A considered discussion of the
returning veteran, published in Foreign Service, organ of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, includes the assertion that "despite
the ominous warnings of those
who pompously predict great
changes in the American scene,
because of our tremendous veteran population, it is ridiculous
to assume that the natural human
qualities of those in uniform will
be destroyed by their military experience."

"The conclusion reached in the article is that "after demobiliza-
tion these men and women will
respond to the same human instincts which controlled their pre-
war emotions," and that "when
the war is over, those who have served in the armed forces will
unite solidly in support of only one
common objective—the precious
privilege of being their individual
selves."

Coming from an organization
composed of veterans who have
served in the country's foreign
wars, this view is especially significant. It reflects an experience
which is likely to be repeated after
this war.

INFLATION OF FRUIT POINTS

Even when the Office of Price
Administration, as the OPA is
termed officially, relaxes the rationing rules, its dispensations
rarely are unmix blessings.

For instance, virtually all
canned vegetables and soups have
been dropped from the rationing
list, at least temporarily. At the same time, processed fruits, canned tomatoes and tomato juice
have been doubled in point
values, in some cases quadrupled.

Suspension of most canned
vegetables from the rationing list
has been made possible by reports
of plentiful supplies. Besides,
fresh vegetables are so plentiful
that the demand for processed
foods has fallen off.

The new values for fruit juices
have been set at multiples of ten.
Consequently, the dealer will give
no more blue tokens in change.
Not only that, but blue tokens
now in the hands of customers
will not be acceptable except in groups of ten. The suggestion is made that neighbors pool their
tokens to get full value from
them. Solution of the problem of
who will get the can of tomatoes,
presumably, will be left to individual enterprise.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Oct. 18, 1883. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

On Thursday last at the Burlington depot Joseph S. Peirce had his pocket picked of $10. James Rue of Bristol township, lost $17, and W. Jackson of Bensalem, $7.

John McDade & Brother, of Philadelphia, have rented Banes' building on Dorrance street, near the railroad, for a carpet factory.

J. Paul Rue, editor of the Lang-borne Standard, attended the Mi-Holly fair last week and is reported as having lost his watch.

Henry Satterthwaite, of Falls, has raised about 5,500 bushels of potatoes this year.

It is said that a Catholic Church is to be established at Yardleyville.

Norristown has been connected by telephone with Reading.

The corps of engineers recently employed in surveying the route from Philadelphia to the Delaware Water Gap, has completed the field work and is now engaged in preparing the maps and the estimates of the cost. The elevation of the Delaware at the Gap is found to be 280 feet above the city datum line,
which will allow of a descent of about 1 1/2 feet per mile to the Cambria reservoir, which will have an elevation of 165 feet. The flow of water at the proposed point of diversion was found to be 700,000,000 gallons per day, during the driest portion of last summer.

The Anglers Association of Eastern Pennsylvania has begun a vigorous crusade against the illegal devices for capturing fish which infest the Susquehanna and the Delaware, and no wonder. If a report read at a meeting of the Association on Saturday fairly describes the condition of affairs. A member while fishing near Egypt Mills, Pike County, discovered at a bend
in the stream three gigantic baskets or fish-dams stretching entirely across the river. He afterward ascertained that about 300 of these dams had been constructed at various points between Port Jarvis and Trenton. The water easily passes through the barrier
but the fish are imprisoned.

General Davis, president of the Historical Society of Bucks County, announces that the October meeting of the Society will be held in the Friends' meeting house, Buckingham, on Tuesday, the 23rd instant, at 11 o'clock. Papers on historical subjects will be read by the following persons: Hon. Henry Chapman; Rev. D. K. Turner, Lik-
and Services of Rev. Nathaniel Erwin; Mrs. Hannah E. Holcomb, a Sketch of Edward Hicks; Miss

Elizabeth Lloyd, the Schools of Buckingham; Charles Laubach,
Durham Furnace; John S. Bailey,
History of Buckingham township,
and a paper by the president.

in the county are said to be unusually large.

The railroad improvements at Mill street are nearly completed.
The workmen are now engaged in erection double gates.

The total receipts from all sources at the Doylestown Agricultural Fair were about $7300. The amount paid out in premiums will reach about $3000.

Mrs. Sarah Temple of Southampton, is in her 101st year, and is still about and active.

The Quakertown school board has decided that parents who send children under six years old to the public schools must pay $2 a month for their tuition.

New Hope Junior Club Conducts Flower Show As Part of Meeting

Featuring the first meeting of the season of the New Hope Junior Women's Club at the headquarters of Midway Fire Company, Labaska, was a flower show of a non-competitive nature. There were 36 entries, some of which were in unusual containers.

During the evening, Miss Margaret R. Slack, Washington Crossing, gave a talk on flower judging, and used the flowers which were on exhibit to emphasize her points. Miss Slack also complimented the members upon the fine exhibit.

Twenty-two members attended the meeting, which was in charge of the new president, Mrs. Watson D. Lake, who opened the meeting by reading a poem, "Cooperation." Group singing was directed by Mrs. John Paxson, Jr., chairman of the music committee.

Mrs. Lake announced the South-eastern District conference will be held in Philadelphia on September 29th, and that the Fall get-together of junior women's clubs in the county will be held in Newtown on September 28th with the junior club in Newtown as the host. Delegates appointed to attend the get-together include Mrs. Raymond Carter, Mrs. George Large, Mrs. Mary Myers, Mrs. Watson D. Lake, Mrs. H. Clay Large and Mrs. Edward Crockett.

Overcome all the enemies of Christ, and bring low every power that is exalted against Him. EDGELY A. C. WINS BRISTOL YOUTH LEAGUE TITLE

Scores 10 to 8 Victory Over St. Francis Vocational School

HAD UPHILL BATTLE

Cupo, Who Relieved Silas, Charged With Loss of The Game

EDGELY, Sept. 25—Edgely A. C. won the championship of the Bristol Youth League yesterday afternoon by scoring a 10-8 victory over St. Francis Vocational School on the Edgely diamond.

To capture the contest, the Edgely team had to fight an uphill battle as the Edgely boys amassed a 7-1 lead in the first three innings. But six runs in the fifth knocked the score for the Ashbymen. The feature of this rally was a three-bagger by Henry VanLenten with the caps loaded.

Mario Cupo, who relieved 'Chuck' Silas in the fifth, was charged with the loss while the winning moundman was Benny Bintliffe who replaced Wayne Schneider in the third. During Bintliffe's tenure on the hill, St. Francis made but four hits and one run. From the fourth to the eighth only 12 batters faced Bintliffe.

Singles by Hibbs, D. Rittler, and F. Elker plus an error by Deluk gave the Edgelyites their winning margin of runs in the eighth. It was Rittler's fourth hit of the contest.

Former Governor Arthur H. James' Address

take a war to find the cure in this state. We'd climbed half the hill before the belated war emergency program was decided on in Washington, and we were at the top of the hill by the time war itself started.

The nation faces the same choice this year that we faced in 1938. We can put the issue in simple words:

"Are we going to let the cook that spoiled the broth try to fry the chicken?"

The New Deal had many years in which to try to cure one Depression. They are telling us very plainly that they expect another Depression as soon as the war ends—a new version of the old one, with more unemployment than ever, and less national resources with which to meet it.

They spoiled the broth in their first attempt. Now I say, and I believe all the women of this nation will agree with me—it's time to try a new cook!

Don't let this "commander-in-chief" business fool you.

It's not the New Deal that's winning the war. It was the New Deal which almost lost it.

The New Deal's doctrine of expediency, the plowing under of corn, the slaughter of pigs, the industrial policies which shut down mills and mines and factories throughout the length and breadth of America, put this nation in the worst possible position for meeting the all-out demands of total war.

We've heard a lot about great wisdom and knowledge and detailed information about what goes on in all the foreign corners of the world. We've heard about secrets delivered to the White House through the years so important that just the ordinary people of this nation, the little men and women whose only interest is that this is supposed to be THEIR nation—they couldn't be let in on these secrets any more than they can be told today what's happening at the peace conferences.

Oh, no! The wisdom and the knowledge of America's present and future—that is a banquet for the White House table; and all we are supposed to do is to hang around and pick up the crumbs! And we are supposed to vote wisely on these national policies and problems without being told what they are!

But the New Deal brain trusters know—they tell us they know. According to their story, they knew practically everything, right from the start.

Now, let me ask you a cold, hard question.

Who was the commander-in-chief when America almost lost the war in a single sneak raid?

Who was in charge of Pearl Harbor? Who left the door unlocked?

Not until the generals of the Army and the Admirals of the Navy assumed charge of the war efforts did we make progress—since then we have been going places.

I repeat: It was the New Deal which almost lost the War, and if today the War is being won, is almost won, it is not because of the New Deal but in spite of it.

Two things have won the war for America—and the New Deal didn't have a blessed thing to do with either.

One of them was industry—private enterprise industry, the same old capitalist system which the New Dealers have been kicking around for so many years.

Because war made it necessary for the New Deal to climb down off the back of industry, to give industry what used to be called "a breathing spell"—because the New Deal was desperately frightened when it realized that its policies had brought America to the threshold of disaster and defeat—for those reasons the mines and mills of America were able to turn out the greatest job of war manufacture in history.

Our factories, freed from New Deal red tape, were able to do their full share as one of the team which is winning the war. American labor may well be proud of that record. And if here and there, warlike strikes have given labor a blackeye, let me remind you that those strikes occurred because New Dealers have persisted in their evil policy of mixing labor problems, politics and partisanship toward rival labor bosses.

The New Deal kept its fingers on just enough of the war effort so we can see the contrast. It is the New Deal which set out to produce rubber—and we still have a desperate tire shortage.

If the guns and airplanes we needed had been produced as the New Dealers have tried to produce rubber, the war would have been over long ago—and we'd be either a German or a Japanese province today.

Here and there are great industrial plants which the New Deal set out to build to show up private initiative. Some of them already have been abandoned because it would take many, many more years to get them into operation. Even if they had been completed, they would have required a further large scale shift in our population, with all the hardships and social upheaval that means, to get them into full operation.

If this part of the war program is finished at all, it will not be until long after the end of the war. If it is useful at all, it will only be for the next war—and I tell you most seriously that there will be a "next war" if the New Deal theories are applied to the problems of world-peace after the end of the present conflict.

One other group deserves the great credit for winning this war. You know the ones I mean.

This war is being won by the young men of America—it's being won by your sons—your boys in uniform.

It is their courage and their skill and, we regret to have to add, their blood, with which victory is being bought.

One of these days those boys of yours will be coming home again. They will deserve the best that America can offer them.

They will deserve real jobs. They will deserve real opportunity. They will deserve a chance in life—a chance to build their homes and happiness, in return for the dangers and hardships they now are undergoing.

That's the sort of bonus they want the most.

Women of Pennsylvania, there are two things which I say from the depths of my heart you will not want those boys of yours to find waiting for them when they come home again.

One is a pick and shovel on a WPA project!

The other is a government that will tell them that if they want a job, they'll have to see a man about joining a union—see a man named Sidney Hillman!

Pennsylvania gave the nation the best possible demonstration that the Republican Party knows how to lick the depression, how to find real jobs by helping industry create them. We showed that the Republican Party is in earnest, that it hasn't forgotten first principles, that it stands for good government, sound government, fair and impartial government, government by due process of law under the Constitution.

In the nation, it is the Republican party that can lift the national mortgage, that can and will give free enterprise a chance, that will stop a post-war depression before it ever gets started, that puts jobs ahead of dole.

As I have said many times before, let's go back to the old board-ing-house of Abraham Lincoln.

It is the women of America who will have the most to say about whether the New Deal is to be given four more years to try to do what it has failed to do in twelve.

The women are the balance of power in this national election.

I, for one, have no anxiety over the outcome.

My own observation is that in politics women often see even more clearly than men the simple and fundamental issues. They know some things almost by intuition—they know honesty of purpose, sincerity, frankness; and also they know that big-talk can hide deep-seated worry, and glibness can cover up incompetency.

Women, who handle the household funds in the homes of America, know that you can't run either a home or a nation successfully by living beyond your means.

They know that a little bit of candour, a little bit of firmness mixed with kindness, a little bit of give and take, can keep a household running smoothly even when the children would like to pull each others hair.

The women of America know also that there may be times when Papa gets too tough, when he swells with his own importance, when the old man of the family gets too big for his breeches!

And that, they know, is something which can happen not only in a private household, but in a national household. And they know what to do about it!

It is the women of America who have supplied the courage and patience and steadfastness which have made possible the victories now being won by our makers of war supplies and by the sons and fathers and brothers now in the armed services.

It is the women of America who are custodians of the future fate and happiness and prosperity of this beloved nation.

In all the world, there are no safer hands to cherish that responsibility.

If the women of America trust their own instincts, if they apply to the government the same principles which make the homes successful, if they demand of their government and their public officials the same high standards and idealism and earnestness of purpose which they try to train into their own children—then the future of America is safe.

Let me close with a brief tribute to the vast women's army of America, an army far larger even than the Waves and the Waacs—the mothers of America who stay at home running their households and meeting the emergencies of the war as best they can:

"Not for the star-crowned heroes, the men that conquer and slay; But a song for those that bore them, the mothers braver than they!

With never a blare of trumpets, with never a surge of cheers, They march to the unseen hazard—pale, patient volunteers!"

Former Gov. James, Congressman Gerlach And Others Address Republicans

say about whether the New Deal is to be given four more years to try to do what it has failed to do in twelve.

Among the other guests and speakers sitting on the flag-decked stage, was the Hon. Charles L. Gerlach, Congressman from the Bucks-Lehigh district, a candidate for re-election to this post, who told the audience, "we need leaders with business ability for the peace that is coming, and Governor Dewey has certainly demonstrated his ability to run the State of New York on a business-like and efficient manner."

Declaring that we will have many rackets in Washington after the peace that will need cleaning up,

Gerlach declared, "We need a man like Dewey to bust these rackets. He will lead us away from the H.H.L. foreign ideologic program of the New Dealers. He will lead us back to the good, old American way of life that has in the past made America the greatest country in the world."

Mrs. Clarence J. Buckman, GOP alternate delegate from this district to the Chicago Convention, gave a detailed report of the trip and the highlights of the meetings there. Former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, delegate to the convention, was introduced by A. Harry Clayton, chairman of the Republican Bucks County Committee. Clayton was in charge of the program of the afternoon.

Preceding the main address, the County Committee re-elected by acclamation all its officers for the next year. In addition to Chairman Clayton, they included: vice-chairman, Mrs. Clarence J. Buckman; secretary, Edward B. Watson; assistant secretary, Miss Eleanor D. Worthington.

Among other guests were the Hon. Hiram H. Keller, President Judge of Bucks County Courts, and Hon. Calvin S. Boyer, associate Judge of the Bucks County Courts. Judge Keller predicted that "Bucks County will have the largest GOP victory in its history." Judge Boyer also said all indications pointed to the success of the Republican ticket on November 7th.

Mrs. Howard Cooker, president of the Bucks County Council of Republican Women, said that "because Americanism is at stake every woman is interested in the coming election and I predict the election of Dewey and Bricker."

Wilson L. Yeakel, candidate for re-election to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth, expressed complete optimism and confidence in the outcome of the election on November 7th.

Woman Denies She Set Fire To House; Didn't Plan It

down of the three-family apartment. Under direct examination by her attorney, Mrs. Ellicott testified that the first time that she had heard anything about a $100 offer allegedly made to her step-brother, Frank Shoudt, to burn the building, was at the Bucks County Prison where she was taken by State Police for questioning.

"It was there for the first time that Trooper Harry Christ and County Detective William L. Stackhouse told me that Shoudt had told them that I had made the offer," Mrs. Ellicott testified.

"Christ said to me that, in prison, 'do you know that I have your half-brother in the next room' and I replied, 'bring him in and I'll make him prove it,' but they didn't."

Under cross-examination by District Attorney Biester, Mrs. Ellicott explained that the Upper Black Eddy property of the defendant was transferred to her by her father about four months before he died. She also stated that her father and mother were divorced.

The defendant stated that she offered the place for sale at various times and for various amounts, but that she did not remember offering it for sale for $3000. She did remember the $4000 figure. She said she figured the garage (which was not burned) at $1000 and the apartment at $3,000. The defendant admitted that she increased insurance on the garage at $1,200 and that she increased the insurance on the apartment house on October 22, 1943 to $5,000.

Mrs. Ellicott, in answer to the prosecuting attorney's question, stated that it was four days after Frank Shoudt said that the defendant offered him $100 to burn the building, that she raised the insurance on the place.

The defendant stated that she did have a gallon jug in her apartment and that it was partly filled with kerosene which she had used some months before for cleaning the kitchen sink. She said that she did not remember the police asking her anything about a jug when they questioned her at the State Police barracks or the prison.

The defendant denied that she told the police that she increased the insurance on her place because it was vacant.

"The morning of the fire as you sat at the breakfast table in your New Jersey home with other occupants of the house—when the fire was discussed—did it not occur to you that it might be your place?" Mr. Biester asked the defendant. Her answer was "no."

"In spite of the fact that Mr. McEntee said at that time to you, that it might have been Elmer Shoudt's barn (220 yards from the apartment house) didn't you think it might be your place then?"

"I didn't think," Mrs. Ellicott replied.

"Didn't you call Elmer Shoudt, your cousin, on the phone, and inquire?"

Mrs. Ellicott testified that she had been at the apartment the Sunday—one week before the fire—to look over the electric connections in order to have them turned on so that the water pump would work. Walter Hart, 43, who lives in a brick house on the Upper Black Eddy property owned by the defendant, and who pays the defendant rent, testified that he was awakened the morning of the fire and he could see flames under the steps on the first floor as he went to the garage to get his car out. He, too, remembers seeing the glass jug produced by the Commonwealth in evidence—or a jug like it—inside the apartment. He said that he used to prop open the door with a jug when he aired the place for Mrs. Ellicott. Hart, who is separated from his wife and has a housekeeper, said that Mrs. Ellicott's reputation for honesty is good.

Others who testified as to Mrs. Ellicott's reputation for honesty and for being peaceful and law-abiding included Herbert Stemm, a Commonwealth witness and cashier of the First National Bank of Milford, who said he had loaned the defendant money several times, but now John Nice, 80-year-old retired store keeper of Upper Black Eddy and a director of the Milford bank; William T. Singley, Upper Black Eddy storekeeper, and Charles Rudman, Upper Black Eddy, a retired mail clerk.

several witnesses—some of them District Attorney Biester called defense witnesses—who testified that they had heard nothing about Frank Shoudt's the defendant's half-brother and that his reputation was good.

mandy coast the German Air Force proved a negligible factor, and General Eisenhower was able to tell his troops that they need not worry about planes overhead because "they will be ours."

But these historic bombings were more than a matter of machines. Each Liberator is manned by a crew of 10. Each Liberator is serviced by highly-gear ground organizations. And the Liberators perform in a manner characteristic of the men who fly and service them.

This representative B-24 group among other feats flew the longest initial mission in the history of the European theater, a heavy assault on Berlin, for which it was officially commended for combat achievement by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, commanding Eighth Air Force.

aggrandizement at the expense of sister States. It is a fundamental necessity if we are to remain a truly united country."

Of course, broadly speaking, the impact of the various Republican pleas this year is that, peace or war, there never is and never will be an indispensable man in a democracy—and that America has reached a stage where we need new and younger blood in the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt has no quarrel with that concept. It was "new and younger blood"—the words are his—which he proposed to infuse into the Supreme Court by his Court Packing bill.

And in 1932, speaking before the Republican-for-Roosevelt League in New York City, he said:

"To indulge in such a fantastic idea of my own individual importance would be to betray the common hope and the common cause that has brought us all together this year. A great man left a watchword that we can well repeat: 'There is no indispensable man!'"

Perhaps the President can be persuaded to form some Roosevelt-for-Republican Leagues before election comes!
